I recently finished my PhD in Computer Science (Minor in Mathematics / Statistics) at University of Philippines at Los-Banos (UPLB) which is an English based university in the Philippines and waiting for my graduation. The title of my PhD dissertation was “Search Engine Results Clustering Using a Modified Imperialistic Competitive Algorithm” which was in the field of Evolutionary Algorithms and Information Retrieval. I had publications in this field were accepted at conferences in US, Korea and Australia. I have strong background in computer science, statistics and mathematics and interested to pursue another professional career.

My strong theoretical background gives me the vision of how to approach and tackle the applied problems in the most innovative way. I have skills, knowledge and a great motivation to pursue a research program.
